POPE JOHN PAUL PERFORMS EXORCISM!

SCRAMBLED EGGHEAD DEAD AT 51

MEDICAL MYSTERY: Li Piao was the only person ever known to have organs that consistently shifted positions within the body.

His heart was in his head! His brain was in his stomach!

BEIJING, China — Li Piao died just days ago and doctors are preserving his body for an autopsy — because the man is the only human being ever to survive with his heart inside his skull, his brain in his abdomen and his kidneys where his stomach should be!

In fact, the 51-year-old man's organs actually shifted position, floating around inside his body like dumplings in a soup.

"He had a massive heart attack and there was little we could do for him because his heart was encased in his cranium," said Dr. Chi Tsung-pi, an internist who treated the nuclear physicist from the time his bizarre condition was discovered in 1958. "We couldn't use CPR and we couldn't electroshock him. We just stood helplessly by and watched him die."

The scrambled egghead first became known to doctors in Beijing when he went to a university hospital complaining of a severe ache in his lower right side. Upon examining him, doctors discovered his scrambled insides, locating his brain in the area where the pain was. They determined he was suffering from a massive headache from too much stress and treated him for the condition. They also made him famous, writing about his bizarre physiognomy in medical journals and scholarly reports.

Then in 1961 doctors gave Dr. Li a second thorough physical and were shocked to find that his organs had shifted location.

"It was absolutely remarkable," Dr. Chi recalled. "We had known of people born with one or two organs out of place, but Dr. Li's organs were totally mixed up and they were not confined to a certain position in the body.

"Our studies indicated that the man lacked a diaphragm, which would normally help the organs stay in place. We took X rays every two months and we clearly detected that his organs moved from place to place. His stomach would migrate from his right shoulder to a spot near his left hip and then move around behind his lung to a position near his navel. He was a fascinating case."

Since Dr. Li's death, scientists have contacted his family and arranged to have his body donated to science. The dead man's corpse has been frozen to preserve it and doctors plan to perform an extensive autopsy in the next month or so.

"This man was one of a kind," Dr. Chi said. "We knew and loved him while he was alive and we feel his death was a great loss. But it

MAN FLIES KITE INTO SPACE!

Texas inventor's high-tech toy soars to new world record!

By TONY CASSIDY / Correspondent

KITTY HAWK, N.C. — Inventor Kurtis Bauer set a world record when he sent a home-made kite soaring 123 miles into space — an altitude higher than Right Stuff's test pilot, Chuck Yeager, reached in the X-15 rocket plane!

The 32-year-old German immigrant launched his ultralight delta winged kite from a knoll here, not far from where Wilbur and Orville Wright made the first controlled airplane flight in 1903.

Bauer's amazing kite — named Icarus II, after a figure in Greek mythology — was attached to a specially developed nylon line 123 miles long. The flight took 17 hours, 25 minutes, 42 seconds to reach its world record altitude.

"This is the greatest achievement of my life," Bauer told a weekly World News reporter in an exclusive interview only seconds after a sophisticated on-board monitoring transmitter confirmed the 123-mile altitude. At that point, I had only 200 feet of line left.

"So many people told me there was no way a kite could go beyond the atmosphere," Bauer said. "I guess I half believed them. But I knew my kite was special, more than just a toy. I had to give it a try.

"Not only did we go higher than the X-15, but we actually reached the threshold of outer space. And I have the printed telemetry to prove it."

Bauer, who lives near Houston, Texas, said his kite's "skin" was made of a special material developed by NASA as a backup to the heat shield that protects the shuttle on its fiery return from space.

Bauer also fitted Icarus II with a featherweight transponder that beamed the superkite's status and altitude to one of NASA's several orbiting Global Positioning Indicator (GPI), which relayed the data to Bauer's data recorder on Earth.

"The recorder proves the altitude record," Bauer said. "But it was the material that covered the delta wing that made the flight possible.

"It absorbed the heat from the sun on its upper surface, then allowed it to emerge from the wing's underside.

"In doing that, the heat created the lift needed to carry the kite into the heavens. The sun actually heated the air under the wings and up it went like an elevator ... until it ran out of line.

"At that point, I released the line from my spool and let it go up. It will continue to rise in space until it absorbs more solar energy than it can transfer. Then the kite and line will burn up.

"If you remember the story of Icarus, when he flew too close to the sun, the wax that held his wings to his body melted and he plunged to his death in the sea.

"That's pretty much the way Icarus II will die in deep space.

"The wings will heat up until they melt and Icarus II will dissolve into nothingness."

PROUD inventor Kurtis Bauer shows off the kite called Icarus II.

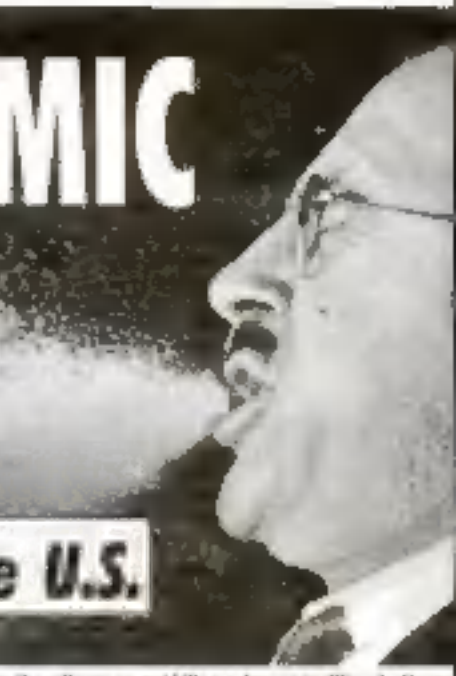
SNEEZING EPIDEMIC KILLS 47

. . . and it's headed for the U.S.



By JIM KEENE / Correspondent

A bizarre new epidemic has already killed dozens of people and may soon kill thousands more — by causing them to sneeze themselves to death!

An estimated 47 people have died of the disease, known as ARBS — Allergy Resistance Breakdown Syndrome — and a spokesperson for the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta says the nightmare illness could become what she calls, "a major health problem in the U.S. within the next year, possibly as widespread as AIDS."

VIROLOGIST Dr. Paula Fernandes

ARBS affects the immune system, weakening the body's resistance to pollens, dust and other allergens that are carried in the air.

"It can only be described as hell," says Dr. Paula Fernandes, the noted Brazilian virologist and internist who treated many of the early ARBS victims. "I've never seen a more agonizing way to die in my entire 30-year career. And I've treated patients with everything from terminal cancer to AIDS.

"ARBS patients can't eat. They can't sleep. They run an irregular temperature up to 90 and 50 times a minute, trying to throw the allergens out of their bodies.

"They become dehydrated from expelling all the mucus and saliva from their mouths and noses. Some have starved to death. But even the ones we're able to feed with an I.V. sink don't last long. The stress on the heart and respiratory system becomes too much."

Experts believe the deadly illness began in Wewak, Papua New Guinea, where workers cleared hundreds of acres of tropical forest to April of 1991.

"We believe the destruction of the forest exposed the people of Wewak to this new virus against which they'd had no opportunity to develop an immunity," said Dr. Fernandes, who was called over from Brazil by New Guinea health officials when the number of cases reached an alarming level.

"We're very concerned," Dr. Fernandes continued.

"Because many of the people who cleared the forest were brought in as part of a cheap labor force from places like Bangkok, Hong Kong, even Calcutta.

"Like the people of Wewak, they have probably contracted this virus and carried it back to their own countries where they may be unknowingly spreading the deadly disease.

"The virus has an incubation period of up to five years. This means it could soon be spreading like wildfire all over the world.

"If that's true, God help us

Teacher romanced teen beauties 7 times a week!

SEX EDUCATION!

He had sex with gals in the gym, football press box — and even the auditorium!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

A middle-age teacher with a gluttonous appetite for beautiful teenage girls may have to do without for quite a while — because he could go to prison for 76 years.

Some of his pretty student sex partners said their social studies teacher, Ronald Price, 48, romanced them up to seven times a week in every place imaginable — on the catwalk above the school auditorium, in the football press box and in the gym.

There were other sexual rendezvous in Price's pickup truck and even in the kitchen of his house as his wife slept in another room.

Price told a jury he didn't do anything wrong because the sexual romps occurred after school hours and the girls weren't under his immediate care.

But a jury in Annapolis, Md., convicted Price of sex crimes involving three former students, who are now 16, 22 and 27.

All of Price's former students at a high school in the Baltimore suburb of Pasadena said they loved the balding teacher at the time they willingly had sex with him.

But prosecutor William Mulford told the jury that consent "is just not a defense" in the case. "Teachers are in a special position," he said. "We entrust our children to them.

"I think it is perfectly clear I will be asking for a long period of incarceration."

Are you a no-good lazy bum?

. . . here's the cure!

By JOAN RYDER / Correspondent

"I know I ought to be working on the lawn (or the house, or the papers on the desk) — but I just can't get myself to do it!"

If this type of laziness is a problem to you, here's good news. A family therapist, Dr. Dennis Jaffe, tells you how to end your problem — with nine easy-to-use tips:

1. "Break the pattern in which you feel lazy," advises Dr. Jaffe. For example, if you often watch TV when you should be doing something else, simply stop watching TV at that time. Do something else — even if it's not a task that needs doing. But breaking the pattern will help you get it done.

2. Break a large job down into small parts. Don't say, "I'm going to redo the whole kitchen in two months." but "Today I'm going to do this, and tomorrow I'll do that." Set clear goals, but don't lump your goals into impossibly large jobs.

3. Ask for help. Often we're lazy because we don't like working alone, Dr. Jaffe points out. Housecleaning, for example, is much easier when everybody does it together. And if you're overwhelmed by your work load on the job, don't hesitate to turn to another person and say, "Please give me a hand."

4. Keep in mind the rewards for getting the job done — a clean house, a paycheck, an "A" on an exam. And imagine how good you'll feel when the task is finished.

5. Motivate others to pitch in — by giving them a say in how it should be done. Let them make up a schedule and divide the work among everyone. This is an excellent way to get teenagers to help. Let them share in rewards too.

6. Get instructions. "Many times we don't start to try but the problem is we don't know how to begin the task," Dr. Jaffe explains. When you're unclear how to do a job you'll find yourself procrastinating.

7. Encourage others to remind you about deadlines — gently. Using others to prod you — without nagging — is a good way to get going. And seek the praise of others when you get the job done, too.

8. Ask yourself what's the most difficult part of the job you're avoiding. "The more you think about the 'bad' parts of the job, the more you'll see they're not really so terrible," says Dr. Jaffe.

9. Reorganize the need for rest. Take a break now and then to just sit and stare or watch a junk TV show. Not all our time has to be spent in useful pursuits.

If you're as lazy as this model appears to be, expert says you can break the habit.

King Tut's curse strikes again!

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Correspondent

A man who lived with the fear that the curse of King Tut's tomb would someday snuff out his life has been found beaten to a pulp—in a locked room in a seedy Cairo hotel!

A hand-scrawled note, apparently written in his final hour of life, read:

"I can run no more. The curse has finally caught up with me, as I knew it would. Soon I will join the others who have defiled the tomb of King Tutankhamen. I pray death will be swift. I am weary and long for peace."

The man, identified from fingerprints as German-born Adolf Zenger, was found lying in a pool of blood on the floor of his room. His face contorted and his eyes bulging from their sockets in stark horror.

"He was beaten to death," declared Cairo Police Inspector Anan Bay.

"It was a savage act and whoever did it must be able to walk through walls. The door and windows of the room were locked and bolted from the inside."

Bay said police records show that in 1978, Zenger was one of six men who stole King Tut's priceless death mask and other artifacts from a Cairo warehouse.

The brazen theft was thwarted by a police informer.

"They actually had the artifacts loaded into a van by the time we moved in on them," Bay said. "When we arrested Zenger, he was so furious he spat on the crate holding the mask. From what I know of the curse, that was not a very wise thing to do."

Bay said two of the six were found dead in the cells even before they came to trial. The remaining four served 10-year prison terms. Since the night of the theft, all have been murdered by persons . . . and forces . . . unknown.

"Zenger was the last of the band to die," Bay said. "Officially, his death is recorded as from the other side that took his life, just as it's taken many others since King Tut's tomb was discovered in 1922."

It was on that date, when archaeologists found the tomb of King Tutankhamen, that the world first learned of the mummy's curse.

Written in hieroglyphics on a clay tablet was an ominous warning: "Death will slay with his wings whoever disturbs the peace of the Pharaoh."

Since then, at least 30 people who have come in contact with the tomb or King Tut's mummy have died strange and mysterious deaths.

Among the latest, in addition to the six hijackers, was RAF pilot Nick Laurie who flew King Tut's death mask from Egypt to England for an exhibition in London. He died

WITH his two assistants, Pope John Paul arrives at the guest house where Gloria Mendoza is staying. The Pontiff begins the exorcism process with a bedside prayer.

VATICAN EXORCISM!

Pope John Paul drives shrieking demon from woman's body!

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II drove a shrieking, foul-smelling demon from a woman's body on September 23 in one of the most astonishing exorcisms on record.

That's the word from author and exorcism expert Charles Plank, who obtained photographic proof of the rite at first Vatican express just days after the Pope saved 43-year-old Gloria Mendoza from the evil entity that had possessed her since April of this year.

The pictures clearly show Pope John Paul praying over the woman in a guest room at the Vatican.

They also show Mrs. Mendoza writhing in agony as the demon fought to maintain control of her body before the Pope's prayers drove it back to oblivion.

"These photographs document one of the most amazing spiritual events in history," said Dr. Plank, a biblical scholar who has written extensively on demons, exorcisms and the Vatican from his base in Frankfurt, Germany, since 1973.

"Pope John Paul has performed just two exorcisms during his tenure, one in 1982, and now, this one," he added.

"Prior to that, the last time any pope performed an exorcism was over 300 years ago — which tells you how unusual it is for the head of the Catholic Church to intervene in cases of demonic possession."

Pope John Paul II has been unavailable for comment on Dr. Plank's report.

But a Vatican spokesman [illegible] confirmed it with this point. But I will say that we are most interested in finding out how Dr. Plank obtained copies of official Vatican photographs that were taken to document the event."

The mind-twisting drama reportedly began on September 16, when Father Vincente Alvarez requested an audience with the Pope to discuss the strange behavior of Gloria Mendoza, one of his parishioners in Almeria, Spain.

According to the priest, the woman had undergone a sudden and horrifying transformation from easy-going housewife to suicidal monster who slashed her own body with knives and tried to drown her 4-year-old son in a soup bucket.

Pope John Paul arranged to see the woman on September 22. And after a lengthy interview, he determined that the woman was possessed and arranged to perform an exorcism the next morning.

"From what I understand, the woman spent the night in a guest house at the Vatican."

THE Pope repeats his command for the demon to leave and Mrs. Mendoza opens her eyes and speaks: "Praise God. I am saved."

opens to the exorcism. When the Pope arrived the next morning, she fell to her knees and started kissing his hands. The Pope showed no emotion as he crossed himself to begin the exorcism ritual.

"But my sources say that his face couldn't hide the apprehension he felt when the demon decided to fight back, causing the woman to scream, curse and spit.

"At that point, the Pope's assistants literally dragged the woman back to her bed and struggled to hold her while His Holiness held out a crucifix to continue the ritual.

"But the demon had other ideas — and caused the woman to vomit and spit out a vile, green liquid while she shrieked and shouted obscenities."

Dr. Plank's sources said Pope John Paul remained calm in the face of the demon's fury. As he recited the prayers of the exorcism ritual, however, the demon made the woman to claw at her eyes — forcing Pope John Paul to pause and take her hands.

"When the Pope took her hands, the woman's body turned black and blue and a foul, eye-burning odor filled the room," said the expert.

"But Pope John Paul trusted in the power of the Lord and said in a loud, clear voice: 'In the name of God, whoever you are, I order you to leave the body of this woman!'

"For a split second, Mrs. Mendoza grew very still. And then, with a tremendous burst of energy, she knocked the Pope to the floor.

"At that point, anything could have happened," continued Dr. Plank. "But with the help of his assistants, the Pope rose to his feet and repeated his command for the demon to leave.

"From what I'm told, Mrs. Mendoza screamed her hatred: 'Die! Die! Die!' Then she dropped gently back down to the bed. For a moment, she looked as if she might be dead.

"But she slowly opened her eyes and whispered, 'Praise God. I am saved.' The demon was gone."

Dr. Plank said the woman remained at the Vatican for two days and attended a private mass the Pope said on her behalf.

Is this incredible artifact from the Lost Continent of Atlantis?

By ERIC THOMPSON - Enterprise Staff

A 12,000-year-old quartz crystal skull, which is believed to be an artifact from the Lost Continent of Atlantis, can heal the terminally ill, its present owner claims.

"This is truly a remarkable relic from a very ancient time in the world's history," said 81-year-old Anna Mitchell-Hedges.

"It has absolutely incredible properties -- properties for which, seemingly, there is no scientific explanation.

"In the more than half-century it's been in my possession, time and time again I have watched in awe as the energy that apparently radiates from the skull has healed individuals who say they are terminally ill or permanently disabled.

"Among those who just want to touch the skull and meditate, some say they can feel its power surging right through their bodies — and they even catch glimpses of the future."

12,000-yr.-old crystal skull heals the sick!

The life-size skull, carved from quartz crystal, was discovered by Anna in 1924 while she and her adventurer father, F.A. Mitchell-Hedges, were excavating the ruins of the 1,000-year-old Mayan center of Lubaantun in Central America.

"I'll never forget that magical moment when I first saw this awe-inspiring antique shimmering in the moonlight," Anna said.

"I found it under a Mayan alter that had been covered by a collapsed wall. I was particularly struck by the fact that the lower jaw is movable. My father believed the Mayans may have used it as an oracle."

However, he was also convinced that the Mayan hands had not fashioned the artifact, because such a detailed sculpture would require diamond-tipped tools. Even the minds are the only material that can carve quartz crystal.

"And these kinds of tools just didn't exist at that day and age," Anna explained.

"Naturally, there are some skeptics who claim the skull is a fake," she continued, "but scientists at the California labs of Hewlett Packard have calculated it's about 12,000 years old.

"Now, the only advanced civilization we know of that may have existed that long ago is the fabled Lost Continent of Atlantis. This lost continent reportedly extended almost to the coast of Central America."

The mysterious and priceless crystal skull is now kept on a velvet-draped alter in Anna's home Rivthaven, Ontario, Canada, where she said, "And I want that to continue after I've gone."

"I was going to leave it to a museum, but when I learned a similar skull at the British Museum is kept under glass, I decided to set up a foundation that will see it is kept in a shrine where people can come and pay their respects."

CELLULITE PROBLEMS?

Ninety percent of women have cellulite: those ugly humps and bulges of lumpy fat in the thighs, hips and buttocks. These unsightly pockets of ripples and dimply flesh do not normally go away with regular diet or exercise.

If you have cellulite, you should know about a new book, The Anti-Cellulite Diet. This book reveals a revolutionary new program to rid your body of those puckered pockets of flesh that destroy firm and beauty. The program was developed by a prominent nutritionist who has helped many women, including celebrities, unleash away cellulite and lose at least 2 pounds a week.

The program is based on a newly discovered scientific finding that specific "anti-cellulite foods" promote the destruction of those spongy, dimply pockets of wrinkled fat. The book lists the specific foods to eat, and the foods to avoid, so your body can start to break down those lumpy cellulite deposits and flush them away. Your body will launch an all-out attack on cellulite while you lose weight safely and rapidly.

The book also explains what causes cellulite problems, why most women have cellulite, why regular diet and exercise often have no effect on cellulite, how to prevent yourself from cellulite, and how you can lose weight and cellulite at the same time.

Many women are gearing up with cellulite because they are aware of this new anti-cellulite diet and the rapid way it can slim, beautify and re-shape your body.

You can order The Anti-Cellulite Diet on a 30-day trial basis. You may be completely satisfied or return the book for a refund. To order, simply send only $12.95 plus $3 postage and handling to: United FAIRY MASON?

Did Raymond Burr create an imaginary family to cover his secret sexual identity?

Sure, showbiz is make-believe — but did Raymond Burr carry the fantasy a bit too far?

The burly actor who played Perry Mason and Ironside may have invented two imaginary wives and a son in bizarre attempts to conceal his true sexual identity.

"There was a mysterious side to Ray," says old friend Lee Miller.

Mysterious isn't the word for it. Although profiles of Burr refer to three ill-fated marriages, only one can be verified.

"Ray said he was married three times," says Miller. "I never met any of them. He never brought up that side of his life."

Burr also claimed that his only child, Michael, died at the age of 10 from leukemia in 1951. But his mother never saw the kid and neither did his sister.

And while Burr supposedly had a [illegible] ful relationship over the past 31 years with Richard Hemphill, [illegible] parson and Barbara Parker.

I never discussed with Raymond his sexuality," says Burr's Ironside costar Don Galloway. Of the three marriages Burr claimed to have had, only the second can be confirmed and that was annulled after 90 days.

He said his first wife died in a plane crash in 1941 and his third wife died of cancer in 1953.

Burr himself died of liver cancer last month, his private life a riddle that even Perry Mason couldn't solve.

But it's not the smell of gunpowder that brings Hepburn back to work.

"Sadly, I have no sense of smell," she says.

"The cause is terrible. I used to dip Q tips in 4711 cologne to refresh my nose, to put it delightly, when I was working on dusty film sets.

"It almost totally destroyed my sense of smell over the years and I never noticed at the time.

"If I do smell anything, I know it must be frightfully strong.

5th-graders wash teacher's mouth out with soap

POTTY-mOUTHED is whatever gets a history lesson from his class.

. . . 'cause he cussed like a sailor!

By JOE BERGER / Mail writer

Scrawny schoolteacher Ralph Candell crossed so much in front of his class that the frisky fifth-graders ganged up on him one morning — and washed his foul mouth out with soap!

"One day that clown let out a particularly nasty stream of obscenities and the kids just decided, man, that was it," said delighted Pamela Cheyden, whose son Wedding now led the attack.

"They got a bucket of water and a bar of soap and cleaned his mouth out real good."

Potty-mouthed Ralph got his comeuppance after ungluing students' ears with the broadest of language for more than a decade at a public school in Pretoria, South Africa.

"We've learned from students that this teacher is very fond of profanity and has been using it in his classes for years," said peeved principal Edgar Preston. "Apparently he got a kick out of talking dirty, and until now they were either too embarrassed or too afraid to mention it to anyone."

But the school-wise kids took matters into their own hands the day Candell spread his vile vocabulary one too many times.

Falling in love turns people into nitwits!

By JACK ALEXANDER / Staff writer

The old cliche that love makes you blind is so much bogwash, says a world-renowned scientist — love makes you stupid.

"I've seen people with IQs of 164 and higher who become dullards when they're smitten by the love bug," said German psychologist Dr Sigfried Gunther of Augsburg. "They become so dumb they barely know how to tie their shoelaces."

Results of a new study conducted by Dr Gunther of 100 people with high and low IQs reveal the electrical activity of the brain goes haywire when you fall in love.

"It's similar to a motor in a car with a few spark plugs misfiring," Dr Gunther explained.

"You can replace the plugs. But with the brain, you can't fix what's broken until you fall OUT of love."

When a person allows his or her thoughts to run free, the brain produces a wild pattern of nerve impulses.

When allowing their thoughts to roam freely, brain waves of people with high IQs were far more chaotic than those with low IQs. The waves from the brain's frontal lobe, which controls planning, were found to be particularly complex in the high IQ group.

As test subjects were told to think of abstract concepts, their brain waves became even more chaotic, making what they imagined being in love.

"They developed from super smart to stupid when they imagined that they were genuinely passionately in love," Dr Gunther said. "The same wasn't true with the low IQ subjects. They were as dumb as they ever were."

Dr Gunther and other researchers plan further studies to find out why love makes a difference.

CUPID'S arrow will turn you into dullard, Alfred E. Neuman, Mad magazine's famed trackhound.

First Lady's Oatmeal Chocolate Chip recipe is lousy!

I TRIED HILLARY'S COOKIES — AND THOUGHT I WAS GOING TO DIE!

MY AMERICA
By ED ANGER

PRESIDENT Bill Clinton knows better than to admit how he feels about the cookies

I just baked a batch of Hillary Clinton's Oatmeal Chocolate Chip cookies and now I see why the lady became a lawyer.

Those rotten pack-ing things taste like dog biscuits, but cry-ing out loud!

No. I take that back. My English bulldog Bulger took one bite of a Hillary cookie and spit it out and ran out the back door yelp-ing at the top of his lungs.

My 8-year-old grandson took one nibble and immedi-ately started banging his head on the floor.

And my wife's hamstrung tank recommends sniff of one of those things — then rolled over and played dead. It was ashame, Hillary Clintons Oatmeal Chocolate Chip cookies ended up going with the garbage.

WARNING: The surgeon general has determined that eating these cookies is hazardous to your health.

But not to each his own. So if you're looking for First Lady Oatmeal Chocolate Chip cookie recipe — or you can whip up a batch and try them for yourself, if you're brave enough.

Just make sure you're not alone when you take the first bite of these things — you should have medical attention present.

HILLARY'S RECIPE

1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup solid vegetable shortening
½ cup granulated sugar
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 eggs
2 cups rolled oats
12 ounces semisweet chocolate chips

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Combine flour, salt and baking soda. Beat together shortening, sugars and vanilla until creamy. Add eggs, beating well. Gradually beat in flour mixture and rolled oats. Stir in chips. Drop teaspoonfuls of batter onto cookie sheets. Bake 8 to 10 minutes. Cool cookies on sheets for one minute; remove them to wire rack for further cooling.

HILLARY'S COOKIE POLL

YES
I agree with Ed that these cookies taste like crap. We smeared on a batch and they blew up like balloons.

NO
We cooked some of Hillary's Oatmeal Chocolate Chip Cookies and they were delicious. We ate the whole batch.

MISSIONARIES FOR MARS?

POPE JOHN PAUL II [illegible] from all [illegible] to be ready to go at a moment's notice.

VATICAN TRAINING 24 PRIESTS TO SPREAD GOSPEL TO SPACE [illegible]

TWO ASTROPRIESTS prepare for their first space launch in search of [illegible]

By LAUREL BOWIE

VATICAN CITY, Rome — Two dozen daring young Roman Catholic priests have completed a top secret six year program preparing them to serve as missionaries [illegible] in the farthest reaches of outer space.

And the Vatican has ordered the elders to quickly alert [illegible] ready to be off to the stars the minute we make official contact with life on another planet.

"This is a truly monumental project, never before [illegible] the Holy Church is undertaking that seeks to make sure that the spirit of God lives in the universe," Bishop [illegible] the Austrian Rector that supervises [illegible] Salzburg, Austria.

"We've asked that the Vatican's astronomers to send rockets, even teachers of [illegible] to convert extraterrestrials to Christ, that is almost certainly going to [illegible] one."

Reports [illegible] have [illegible] that the Church was training a [illegible] team of missionaries to travel to Mars and perhaps back in January 1988, after word [illegible] that a space [illegible] version of the Apollo 11 moon landing [illegible] on the [illegible] of equipment to [illegible] the source said.

Pope John Paul II has ordered them to be ready to go at a moment's notice.

Father Pierre Sierra, a Vatican theologian, [illegible] it's clearly important that the Church prepares itself to begin missionary work among the stars.

"The existence of alien races in outer space is hardly settled," he said. "Still we cannot afford to ignore space exploration or the possibility of meeting other living creatures."

But Fraser D'Alemo, newly elected president of the Jerusalem-based Citizens for Non-Intervention in Alien Affairs, urged the Vatican to abandon its [illegible] plans to convert aliens to Catholicism.

"We are about to embark on the most mind boggling period of discovery mankind has ever seen, a time when we will be introduced to beings unlike anything we can presently imagine," D'Alemo said.

"Let's not mess it up by preaching and thumping our Bibles. That will only make other residents of the universe grow to despise us."

The program was designed to make sure that the Catholic Church leadership was ready the time comes to [illegible] ambassadors and secretaries [illegible] the source said.

During the five years since their [illegible] priests from around the world — including two Americans — have undergone intensive training in "observation and techniques" to become astronauts, be ready to [illegible] space.

Lose weight fast — by eating like an island princess!

You can lose up to six pounds a month and never give up any of your favorite foods!

Dr. Roderick Statham of Dublin, Ireland says that when he visited the island of Bali, he never saw a fat islander.

He discovered the native custom of daylong nibbling rather than eating three large meals was an important factor in keeping slim.

"This system can easily be translated to diets all over the world," he said. "It's simply a matter of taking the three meals you ordinarily eat each day and dividing them into six or seven smaller meals."

Historians believe the habit of nibbling frequently originated with the daughters of the royal family of Bali many years ago.

Dr. Statham explained how the South Seas diet can work for you.

BREAKFAST- If you usually have cereal, orange juice and a sweet roll, eat everything except the sweet roll [illegible] toast you can eat the cereal full.

LUNCH- If you're planning to have a tuna sandwich, salad and a soft drink, eat half the sandwich an hour and a half to two hours before your regular lunchtime. Then at lunchtime, eat the other half sandwich with the salad. Have the soft drink at three or four p.m.

DINNER- If you're planning a dinner of broiled fish, peas, a salad and apple pie for dessert, eat the dessert first, an hour before dinner.

Then, at your regular dinnertime, eat the rest of the meal.

EAT right and who can be so slim as model Maureen Flaherty.

I wish space aliens would kidnap my rotten brats!

AMERICA'S MOST OUTSPOKEN ADVICE COLUMNIST

Dear Dotti: I was furious after reading a story in Weekly World News about how space aliens are kidnapping Earth children. When I think about all the sweet, lovable kids who are vanishing and the crummy, trouble-making brats that I'm stuck with, I could explode.

Please include my name and address at the end of this letter. That way if space aliens are monitoring your paper they'll know where they can pick up my kids! — Anxious in Baltimore

Dear Anxious: Don't be stupid. If those children of yours are half as bratty as you say they are, the aliens who kidnapped them might retaliate by capturing Earth — and we want it!

Confidential

Dear Popular Girl in Waycross: "Triple header" isn't the word for it. You're sick!

Dear Frankster in St. Louis: I don't care what your buddies say. Anybody who scarfs plastic whistle spewed a wrinkly might be sick!

Dear Hospitalized in Plano: The next time you send your bubblehead "plant" on the street, pinkbrain, make sure the bumpers are off!

Dear Perplexed Lady in Wetmore: I've heard of people sitting on flag poles, but this is ridiculous!

Dear Dave in Sterling Jam: Would the world be better off without you? Pfft rolleyes!

Dear Mourning Mom in Maryland: I got a lot of his other letters, but this one takes the cake. Sure — run with a tool named for cause he has to run with a head crowd. Nice old, boy, an underachiever, too!

I dream of a gal at work during sex with my wife!

Dear Dotti: I can't make love to my wife unless I close my eyes and imagine that she's this gal I know at work. It's not that she's ugly or anything like that. In fact, she's a knockout that most guys might kill for. I feel guilty about this, Dotti. What should I do? — Dreamer in St. Paul

Dear Dreamer: Tell your wife exactly what you told me. Women aren't nearly as sensitive about these things as men seem to. Once they get — good. I'm SURE she'll understand.

Am I stupid because I'm still dancing to disco music?

Dear Dotti: Even though there are the 1980s, I'm obsessed with disco music. I love all those old disco movies and records from the 1970s. And to tell you the truth, I think John Travolta and the Bee Gees are the greatest performers who ever lived. I even wear bell bottoms, polyester shirts and platform shoes so I'll look just like they do. Unfortunately, people make fun of me for being hopelessly out of date. Give me your opinion, please. — Boogie Man in Trenton

Dear Boogie: Don't walk, run, to the nearest shrink. Anybody who wears disco duds in this day and age needs professional help.

Boss caught me stealing — now he wants me to get out!

Dear Dotti: My boss found out that I was embezzling from the company. He said that if I slept with him once a month, he'd forget about my crime. I like my job and want to keep it. The thing is, I already have a boyfriend and a boyfriend who are wearing me out. Help! — Confused in L.A.

Dear Confused: I could say a lot of things about your situation but I'll keep it short and sweet. Stupid like you deserve what you get!

Your crack about beating women was horrible, Dotti!

Dear Dotti: You recently stated that housewives should be beaten with belts. That stinks! — Mad in Macon

Dear Mad: I don't know whose coloring column you've been reading, but it certainly wasn't mine. So why don't you shut your whole fool trap — and send your stupid opinions to Mom!

Send all comments, your letters — and tell it like it is. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Should I sell my soul for a Lincoln Town Car?

Let Serena help you. Write to Serena Sabak, Weekly World News, 600 S. East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462. We advise a self-addressed envelope.

Dear Serena: I've worked my fingers to the bone all my life for nothing. I live in a shack. I'm constantly behind on my bills. And if it weren't for food stamps, I wouldn't have anything to eat.

A friend of mine says I could start living a life of luxury if I would give my soul to Satan. I don't like the idea. But I've got to admit that I've always dreamed of owning a new Lincoln Town Car. What should I do? — Desperate in Canton

Dear Desperate: If you think your life is a nightmare now, just wait until you make a pact with Satan. He might very well get you that Lincoln — but the price you pay will be nothing less than eternal damnation!

Dear Serena: I've been married to a wonderful man for 10 years. He says he has to work late. I've always trusted him, but I've recently found out that he's been seeing another woman. He says he loves me and wants to stay married, but I can't help feeling that he's cheating on me.

Am I right? — Worried in Seattle

Dear Worried: Your suspicions are correct. Divorce him right away. As unlikely as it might seem at this point, your marriage can be saved.

Dear Serena: For many, many years I've had the feeling that I would come into a lot of money. Unfortunately, I'm on my last 75¢ and have a cold coming on. Will I come into a large sum of money? If so, will I get it before I die? — Concerned in Greenville

Dear Concerned: You will indeed come into a large sum of money. And you'll receive it considerably before the year is out!

PERSONAL TO . . .

Grateful in Syracuse: The church you build with the lottery jackpot will bring comfort and joy to many. May God bless!

Concerned in Daytona: Your next-door neighbor may be lonely and shy — but she is not a murderer!

Laverick in Birmingham: Bill really does love you. In fact, I see you getting married!

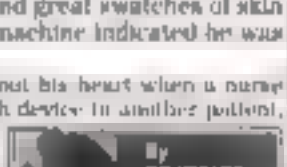
REMOVE HIS EYES, A KID

"If it weren't for my loving family I'd end it all," says transplant victim Antonio Boccialdo.

Trucker Antonio Boccialdo woke up in the hospital following a wreck — and found out transplant surgeons had gutted his body while he was in a coma!

Doctors took the 51-year-old man's eyes, one of his kidneys, his left lung, both hip joints, his knee cartilage, 30 percent of his bone marrow and great swatches of skin after a malfunctioning hospital machine indicated he was brain dead.

They were preparing to take out his heart when a nurse attached the electroencephalograph device to another patient, discovered it was broken and alerted surgeons.



By BEATRICE DESTRA special report

"It's lucky for me I'm alive at all," said Boccialdo in a statement before a court room in Naples, Italy. "But the way they left me, I might as well be dead.

"I can't see. I can barely walk. I have difficulty breathing, and I have to spend over a week on a kidney dialysis machine.

ARMCHAIR EXERCISES!

Build rippling muscles — and never get off your butt!

Just 10 minutes of simple exercise three times a week will keep you in tip-top physical condition — and you can do it while sitting in a chair!

[illegible] exercises which you do while sitting in an armchair are aimed at keeping you in good physical shape," explained Dr. Laurence Morehouse, a recognized authority on exercise physiology.

He says if you're a housewife or an office worker, you're in good shape when you can walk up a flight of stairs and not be out of breath.

Dr. Morehouse gives the following tips for those who want to try the armchair workout:

● Sit comfortably in a chair, hang onto both armrests, lean back, extend your legs and pretend you're pedaling a bicycle with your feet. Do this exercise for about a minute.

● Grasp the armrests of your chair, lean forward with your hands under your shoulders and try to lift yourself out of the chair. It's not necessary to lift yourself completely. It's the effort that counts. Repeat the exercise 16 to 20 times.

● Slide forward in your chair until you're near the edge and your back is unsupported. Lift your heels and legs back until the tummy muscles feel stretched. Then tighten them as much as you can and hold that position for about 10 seconds. But don't hold your breath — keep breathing! Repeat the exercise a couple of times.

● Repeat the bicycle riding exercise — but this time keep it up for about five minutes.

The important thing is to get your heart rate up to 120 beats per minute.

"Chair exercises have to be a little more intensive than your normal daily activity," Dr. Morehouse said. "But they're better for you than 18 holes of golf three times a week."

Henpecked hubby shoots nagging wife to death!

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Henpecked hubby Maury Pridana put up with his nasty wife's nagging for 40 heartbreaking years before finally flipping his lid and blowing her brains out.

And even as he pulled the trigger, the mousy mechanic heard his mouthy mate's voice ringing in his ears — bitching at him about the way he was holding the gun!

"It was incredible. I had the pistol cocked and pressed against Anna's head and she was still nagging me, telling me I didn't know anything about guns and I should be holding it with both hands," recalled hen-pecked Maury Sr.

"Even with death staring her in the face, she couldn't resist the urge to tell me what a bumbling fool I was. It was the perfect ending to an absolutely rotten marriage."

She even chewed me out for the way I was holding the gun, he tells cops

The frantic dad's tale of woe began on 1963 when he met blue-eyed Anna on a night club in Nice, France, and fell head over heels in love.

"I thought she was the most beautiful woman I'd ever met and during the three months we dated, she treated me like a king," said man-nered Maury told a reporter

"IT was the perfect ending to an absolutely rotten marriage," says sleazy Pridana.

"So I asked her to marry me and when she said yes, I thought I was the luckiest man on Earth. But the minute we said I do she started nagging, telling me what a worthless bum I was — and she never gave me a moment's peace from that day on.

"I didn't cook right, I didn't vacuum the house right, I didn't dress right, I didn't even make love right.

"She was constantly telling me what a loser I was and she was constantly telling me I never had what a loser I was.

"I thought about killing her a dozen times, but I always didn't work out. Finally I just flipped."

One day as Bertie an Anna, 37, groused about the way he set their dinner table, cooled Maury grabbed a .38 caliber pistol and put a bullet in her brain.

He was convicted of manslaughter and a sympathetic judge sentenced him to three years in prison.

"I'll never forget the way she looked up the barrel of that gun and lectured me about the proper way to shoot a pistol," Maury recalled. "She was a bitch to the very end."

GUNNED DOWN: Anna Pridana. She was "a bitch to the very end," says her husband Maury.

YOUR MATE'S HANDS REVEAL HIS FEELINGS!

You can put your finger on what your spouse is really thinking — simply by watching his hands, says an authority.

"Even the most loving of couples sometimes try to hide their feelings from each other," declared behavioral analyst Maxine Fiel.

"However, it's really important that they know what's going on in their partner's head." And the position of the hands furnishes vital clues to how your mate really feels, says Mrs. Fiel, an internationally known writer and lecturer. She offered this outline on how various emotions are clipped all by the hands.

LOVE. Loving couples will often hold their hands open with the fingers apart — signifying the frankness open-ness and honesty between them, says Mrs. Fiel.

They will touch hands a lot and play with each other's fingers — sometimes without realizing that they are doing it.

HATE. The hands are tense and clenched. "They may even be clasped together, fingers firmly interlocked," said Mrs. Fiel. "Held in front of the body, they become the brick wall that has been thrown up between them."

JEALOUSY. The jealous partner's hands will be constantly in motion — moving closer to his pockets patting and rubbing at his neck, looking at his hands. The hands are frequently in motion. The fingers will be tapping away — sometimes even on the other hand."

ANGER. "The hands will tremble, and the person will then frequently turn this into a hard clenched fist."

LYING. The deceiving partner will rub his hands together, or rub one finger over another. "They are wriggling a little bit, hoping to allay the ire past their mate," she said.

DESPONDENCE. "The person's hands will be loose — almost as if he has no control over them." The fingers will be hanging down, and the hands will be limp.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR COOL

...if you're about to blow your top!

COUNT to ten before you explode and say something you might regret

By JOHN ROBERTS

You can keep your temper and keep the peace, experts say, by learning how to defuse an anger buildup before it explodes out of control.

A few simple techniques can help you distract yourself from [illegible] your anger. Jumping your mind on other things or simply [illegible] angry outburst that might cause problems for you.

"When you see a situation building up in the point where you're likely to explode, divert your attention," said psychiatrist Dr. Harold Visotsky. "When you do that, the intensity of the stimulus [illegible] lowering the anger diminishes."

For example, let's say you're stuck in traffic and your car radiator is boiling over. You need to divert your attention away from the situation that is provoking your anger. You can do that by singing a song. Sing out loud. If you're embarrassed, roll up the windows and sing. [illegible]

● [illegible] hard enough, the pain will divert your attention from the anger-provoking situation.

● Take five deep breaths. This will give you time to collect your thoughts, which will diminish the intensity of your anger.

● Recall a pleasant experience. [illegible] enjoyed doing will transport you from an aggravating situation to a pleasant one.

● Count to ten. This is an old standby, but it will give you time to think before you respond.

● Reevaluate your importance. Look at the whole picture and you'll soon realize that you're really a little fish in a great big sea and your anger means very little in the overall scheme of things.

● Laugh at your blunders. When you realize all the things that you have in life outshine [illegible], it's hard to be miserable over one little irritant.

TOURIST PHOTOGRAPHS FLYING DINOSAUR

SENSATIONAL snapshot of the creature in swirling babyskins.

By BEATRICE DEXTER (Correspondent)

Amateur photographer Calvin Smith caused a sensation among scientists when he snapped a picture of a giant flying creature — and experts concluded it was a survivor from the dinosaur era 65 million years ago!

The winged monster photographed as it landed on a rock in western Zaire in August has webbed leathery wings and appears to measure at least 77 feet in length. It has a triangular wingspan and a horn-like growth on its head, the Polaroid photo reveals.

"The thing has been spotted by another 12 times flying in the Lhanga river region north of the city of Mbanda-ka," says Smith, who was photographing rare marsh plants with his wife Margaret when he snapped his sensational picture.

"I was just lucky enough to be on the spot when it jumped overhead.

"It was an enormous thing.

GIANT HOROSCOPE

By MARILYN WELLMAN
ASTROLOGER TO THE RICH AND FAMOUS

For the week of Mon., Nov. 1 — Sun., Nov. 7

ARIES
Mar. 21-Apr. 19

Don't be impulsive!

Be cautious in business matters for the next week or so, but a lucrative investment possibility is worth considering. Get sound financial advice before making a commitment.

A puzzling uncertainty in your life will at last disappear, and you can look forward to steady progress in areas of concern to you. You will be rewarded.

TAURUS
Apr. 20-May 20

Keep conflict to a minimum!

You may have a run-in with someone quarrelsome that much. Don't worry! Your amazing ability to deal with others will right the situation in no time at all.

Good news involving your family will come to you in the next few days. A relative is thinking of you with fondness.

Put any pressing financial matters on a back burner.

GEMINI
May 21-June 20

Accept all invitations!

Friends may be planning a surprise for you. Take the time to socialize.

Be on the lookout for a romantic encounter. You'll find it when you least expect it — but DO expect it!

That sense of loyalty could get in the way when one you trust tries to take advantage of your friendship.

Play it by ear.

CANCER
June 21-July 22

Get plenty of rest!

You've been pushing yourself too hard lately. Take the time to relax — at least an hour each day for a while. Your mind and body will benefit.

Be honest with friends and relatives. Don't hesitate to speak your mind. Saying only what you think people want to hear can cause problems for them — and for you.

Smile a lot!

LEO
July 23-Aug. 22

Lighten up!

Someone with influence and experience will provide your personal key to newfound wealth before the week is out. All you need do is recognize the words of wisdom when they're delivered — then act to capitalize on them.

Risky alert! Don't blow this opportunity! Rely on the magic of your charm and character to pull it all together.

VIRGO
Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Do the right thing!

A pesky thorn will soon be plucked from your side, leaving you unhampered in your effort to please those who are counting on you.

Be prepared to give a friend in need the benefit of your hard-earned experience. Your special sensitivity will provide the solution.

The weekend will be fun.

LIBRA
Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Be considerate and caring!

Your advice and friendship will help a pal out of a serious scrape. But remind your friend that facing the truth is the beginning of the way out of the problem.

Long-time plans may change unexpectedly. Everything works out fine if you are patient.

Being the witty fireball you are, a weekend of social activity awaits you. Relax for a change!

SCORPIO
Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Keep your chin up!

A personal problem will be resolved at last. A friend offers to help you out. Accept the offer.

Look forward to some pleasant moments of relaxation as a bit of the pressure of your life eases. Take advantage of this rare power and quiet to think about your long-term goals.

There's money in the air. Have some of it!

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Pounce on that opportunity!

Get advice from experts and friends if necessary, but don't waste time. This is a terrific time to make a move — and it's a move up!

Your stubborn streak might create friction, but you can head off problems by showing how interested you really are.

Expert efforts you've made to pay off handsomely. You feel great!

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Don't settle for less than the best!

You would do well to reflect on recent accomplishments with regard to future goals. You're capable of more than you imagine — so go further than you think you can!

An exciting weekend away from the usual crowd will open the door to a new relationship and bring meaning and purpose to your life.

Your luck is riding high.

If your birthday is this week . . .

Mon., Nov. 1 — Sun., Nov. 7

Your year is filled with pressure!

Beginning with your financial situation — which will improve dramatically — most events in some of your life appears to be on the upswing. If you feel good now, expect to feel better!

Don't waste time worrying about things you can't do anything about. Concentrate on problems and circumstances you can solve.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Learn some new tricks!

Acquiring some fresh skills may be the most effective way to reach your dream of success. Don't sit that dream and take more definite steps to make it come true. Progress will be faster than you imagined!

Passion and humor go hand in hand this week. It's okay to laugh

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20

Slow down and plan!

Take the time to think before you act. You can succeed at a slower pace and cut the risks in half.

You find it easy to deal with romance at this time. A strange happening sparks an idea for improvement in your personal life. Be alert and take advantage of it.

Red is your lucky color. Wear it

HOW YOU CAN TRICK SALESMEN INTO GIVING YOU GREAT DEAL$

By KEVIN CREED
Correspondent

Experts say you can save hundreds of dollars a year by learning to trick those pesky salesmen into giving you great deals!

Psychologist Dr Robert Cialdini spent years studying the interaction between customers and salesmen. He has these recommendations to help you improve your bargaining skills and aid you in making major purchases like TVs, cars and furniture.

● Inform yourself. Read lots of consumer magazines and take them with you so the salesman sees you as a knowledgeable buyer. This is especially true in the case of women as because salespersons usually expect them not to know as much as men.

● If you expect to buy an expensive car or TV a good way to get the salesman sure that you're price conscious is to ask the cost of a cheaper model before you ask about the one you want. Dr Cialdini's research shows that salesmen will be more inclined to quote you a lower price if he thinks you're stretching your budget.

● If you feel the salesperson doesn't have the authority to lower the price, ask to see the manager. Managers have more leeway.

● Remember that, as a rule, small independent stores have more room to lower prices through bargaining than large chain stores.

● Be sure your personal appearance projects a businesslike image if you look like a hard bargainer it will help remind the salesman that you'll only shop bargains.

Stupid drunk crashes car into police station!

Hell-raising Harry Rowan wound up in the pokey after he got drunker than a skunk and crashed his car through a wall — coming to rest in the lobby of police headquarters!

Cops in Pretoria, South Africa, say plastered Harry, 25, managed to stop his van just feet from a startled desk sergeant.

The tipping laborer was fined $315 and ordered to compensate the city for $17,000 in damages to the station.

SPACE ALIENS PUT EARTH UP FOR SALE!

By BART CRAMER

LOS ANGELES — A controversial UFO expert says space aliens have staked a claim on our planet and put it up for sale.

And while outspoken scientists and researchers are calling Richard Cohen's claims "preposterous," the expert says he has "evidence to prove that extraterrestrials are trying to sell our planet to the highest bidder."

"Make no mistake — our world is on the auction block and we can only hope that the operators who buy it have our best interests at heart," Cohen, 39, told reporters.

UFO EXPERT Richard Cohen

"The wrong kind of buyer might steal our natural resources and leave the world as barren as a desert — or in an even worse case, make slaves of every man, woman and child on the planet," he said.

Cohen's report says that while aliens have been asking for Earth, he revealed that the value of mineral deposits alone are worth at least $15 trillion.

Cohen's report was met with plenty of skepticism but he pointed out he called [illegible] "overwhelming circumstantial evidence" to support his claims.

"The fact that space aliens and UFOs are visiting Earth proves that we've got something they want," he said. "And it's reasonable to assume that the first extraterrestrials who arrived on Earth claimed it as their own.

"That claim of ownership is constantly challenged to establish a colony here. They are almost certainly [illegible] world.

"Our skies are literally filled with UFOs," he added. "And chances are each and every one of them is carrying a potential buyer."

One of a handful of scientists who agree with Cohen is the German astronaut, Richard Keil.

DRAMATIC RESCUE

HEROIC RESCUERS climb out on the ledge to save the distressed canine

SPOILED DOG TRIES TO COMMIT SUICIDE

HOOPER the poodle

Pampered pooch crawls out on 14-story ledge — after owners put her on diet!

By JOE BERGER /Staff writer

A pampered poodle named Doopsie was so furious when her fat-cat masters put her on a diet that she climbed onto a 14th-floor window ledge — and threatened to jump to her death!

"Dogs really do commit suicide, and this one definitely would have jumped if she'd just found the nerve," said famed animal behaviorist Dr. Jacques Dussetre.

"She's the most spoiled dog I've ever run across, and when her owners decided to take away her steak and caviar and put her on a low-cal regimen, she simply refused and tried to kill herself.

"And it looks like her whole heroic rescue was right out of the ledge and get her. I'm sure she'd eventually have gotten up her courage and gone right over the edge."

Spoiled Doopsie had lived like a princess till a month ago when a vet warned millionaire banker Bernard Abbott and his wife Dori that their eight-pound hound was headed for an early grave.

"We love Doopsie and the truth is, we spoiled her rotten," doting Dori told reporters on Park Avenue.

"She had her very own valet to wait on her hand and foot around the clock and her very own cook to prepare her favorite dishes.

"She ate T-bones and prime rib and lobster thermidor and eggs Benedict and anything her heart desired — cooked just the way she liked best.

"She had her own little feather bed in the country house and in the apartment in town and she loved them so much she hardly ever got out of doors. She even took most of her meals in bed. Finally her vet advised us it 'take away her comfy bed, make her exercise — and even maybe her cat ordinary old dog food.

"It really hurt us to even think of treating our poor Doopsie that way. We did it though, because we wanted to save her life."

But the minute the Abbotts removed Doopsie's royal bed and swapped her lobster for plain chicken, the spoiled mutt got mortified and refused to eat. She wouldn't sleep — and she started and stopped acting like her heartbroken owners were starving her to death.

"We took her to Dr. Dussetre because I supposed to be the best doggie psychiatrist around," explained Dori. "He discovered and he called rest... from the animal Well... for months! " mutterings Dori heard recalled.

"But we just never really believed Doopsie would go through with it. We tried to talk her down but she just scoffed at us and moved closer to the edge — acting as if she didn't care if we did. I took off.

"Finally we called Dr. Dussetre and he called reporters

Want a REAL friend for life?

CHOOSE A WOMAN!

By DARLENE SUTTER

Girls make the best pals, researchers say.

Studies show that women are better able than men to open up to other people and empathize with others' feelings.

"A woman knows how to relate to another person," said Dr. Elizabeth Duncan, a psychologist and social researcher. "But revealing the real self is a rare phenomenon in men."

Dr. Duncan and other researchers at the University of Michigan conducted studies in seeing more than 1,000 people to find out how the sexes participate in making friends. Their results proved that for the most part, girls are taught from childhood to be more open and expressive than boys.

"By the time a girl is 10 she begins to see a friend as a real person. She wants someone who will complement her personality with attentive, interesting, funny and smart.

"But boys rarely progress past the buddy buddy stage. A man doesn't make friends easily. He keeps things to himself. Most of his friendships aren't very deep. They center around work, sports and activities that he's sharing with other men," said Dr. Duncan.

"And those aren't the kind of friendships that are self-revealing and intimate."

Experts say the difference in the sexes' ability to make friends stems from their upbringing. "Women are trained to be gentle and passive. So they're more nurturing," said psychiatrist Dr. John Engel. "That's what they learn from infancy.

"Men are trained to be both competitive and tough. They are not supposed to be emotional and they are not supposed to share their feelings."

GRAMPS, 82, ARRESTED FOR TWITCHING!

By BEATRICE DEXTER / Correspondent

Cops thought he was picking up a hooker

Embarrassed retiree Richard Mortated, 82, spent the night in jail — because he has a twitch!

Cops thought that the old man was soliciting a prostitute when he nodded his head and winked at a streetwalker. But Mortated says he has a severe facial tic and he was not winking, just twitching as usual.

"I don't fool around with that type of woman," said Mortated, a former plumber and part-time preacher from Auckland, New Zealand. "I never have and I'm certainly not going to start at my age.

"I was just going out for some aspirin because I was feeling bad.

"I stopped at a red light where this young woman was standing and the next thing I knew some police officers were pulling me over."

Mortated has had a severe facial tic since he suffered a stroke in 1991. His eldest daughter says the old man's twitching is unpredictable even when he takes medication and that it has caused him problems before.

"Once we went out to dinner and Dad was throwing his head around and all and the waiter nearly went out of his mind," she said. "He thought that maybe something funny was in the food, and kept coming over. I had to explain that my father suffered from a facial spasm."

On the night of his arrest, the old man had been [illegible] in bed when he was awakened by a splitting headache. Although it was 3 a.m., the headache was so painful that Mortated decided to find an all-night store and buy some aspirin. "I drove my car over to an area where there was one of those convenience stores, but it was closed," he said.

"I was looking for another place when I stopped at a red light and some lady in a short dress came up to me and knocked on my window.

"I ignored her and went on when the light changed and the next thing I knew the police were pulling me over. They told me I was under arrest for trying to woo that prostitute, and I told them I never did anything of the kind. They got mad and took me to jail and kept me there overnight, in a cell with crooks and things.

"It was the most terrible thing that ever happened to me."

A police spokesman says the arresting officers had no idea about Mortated's tic and simply responded to what they witnessed.

He says authorities have apologised and agreed to drop charges of solicitation.

'MARS OBSERVER' PHOTOGRAPHED GIANT FISH IN SPACE!

AUGUST 11 [illegible] Mars Observer [illegible] shocking image of a 750-mile-long fish

By MACKIE CAINS [illegible]

A secret NASA photograph of a gigantic fish swimming through space proves beyond the shadow of a doubt: Life not only exists on other planets — it exists in the eerie vastness of space itself!

That's the word from astrophysicist Dr. Reginald Dana. The scientist obtained a copy of the photo from NASA sources who say the picture was brought back to Earth from the Mars Observer before the entire probe mysteriously went silent on August 21.

NASA spokespersons declined to comment on the photograph or Dr. Frank's report.

But insiders privately conceded that analysts are looking into the possibility that the creature, which is estimated to be 750 miles long, collided with the probe — or attacked it outright. "It's not only an astonishing photograph. It's proof that [illegible] Dr. Dana said. "We [illegible] nothing about." Dr. Frank, who is widely considered to be one of the world's leading space scientists, [illegible] Washington, D.C.

"Make no mistake. This is the discovery of the first living [illegible] life on other planets. It's also [illegible] question the impor-any theory. Dr Frank is the only expert to predict the probe was almost 186 million miles away when it took the picture.

"So the other night I said I would predict the future. Only time will tell if the space fish is headed our way or swimming into deep space."

This isn't the first time that Dr Frank has made interplanetary headlines by releasing information about the Mars Observer that NASA wanted to keep secret.

As Weekly World News and other major media reported past weeks ago, the expert ob-

[illegible] NASA [illegible] case but resigned when it. The space agency declared to remain. But Dr Frank said that NASA's own analysis had concluded that the alien craft was built by humans because it was the only planet that life existed and had ever inhabited Earth.

Dr Frank's latest report is equally shocking — and controversial.

Critics and others are certain have argued that the so-called "space fish" is nothing more than an odd configuration of cloud, dust and light. In a response to these accusations, Dr Frank released a photo of the NASA report.

[illegible] Far from showing a rock-like image, the photograph appears to show a life-like animal, bears a remarkable resemblance to a fish.

Everything is speculation at this point. But it's possible that the life form damaged the Mars Observer in a collision or by mistaking it for food.

Dr Frank said, "NASA isn't in the business of jumping to conclusions but to say that the creature appears to be a life form is the understatement of the year.

"You don't need a degree in physics to see that this is a living, breathing fish. What it inherits on the sky, airless, vacuum of space is a mystery, of course.

"And how it finds food in [illegible] support its existence? To me, these remains a question of the first order. Unfortunately, this photo is the only evidence we have.

"We don't know where the fish is now. And chances are we might never see it again."

Although Dr Frank clearly has more questions than answers, he has theorized that the space fish "possesses intelligence and instincts of some significance, otherwise it wouldn't be able to navigate in space."

He went on to challenge NASA to release "any and all information on the space fish.

"Sometimes NASA forgets that taxpayers are paying the bills," continued the expert. "And the people who pay the bills have a right to know."

Simple tips to . . .

BANISH WRINKLES —FAST!

Stand on your head. Stop smoking. Go easy on the booze. Practice a wrinkle-free smile. Take a cold shower. Do these things and you will have fewer wrinkles, says a top beauty and skin expert.

By JANE RYAN

Everyone has to grow older, but you do longer have to accept wrinkles as an inevitable part of the aging process.

Dr. Graham Griffiths, a prominent plastic surgeon, said standing on your head is one good way to avoid wrinkles.

"Gravity is a big reason for skin wrinkles," he explained. "When the years the force of gravity pulls down on your skin, causing wrinkles.

"A good way to reverse this is to lower your head between your knees or hang it over the edge of a bed 10 minutes a day."

Here are more tips from Dr. Griffiths:

● Smile without crinkling your eyes. "Practice a smile that moves only your lips. Many Hollywood stars have done this. That's part of the reason that they have maintained good looking for a long time."

● Sleep on a slant board. By elevating your head this way or with extra pillows, you'll prevent fluids from building up in your face. Fluid build up causes skin tissue to break down and wrinkles to form.

● Take a cold shower every morning. "It helps tone up your facial muscles and is a great boon for the skin," said Dr. Griffiths.

● Avoid eating polyunsaturated margarine, salad oils or any foods that are fried in polyunsaturated vegetable oils. They cause a chemical reaction that makes skin cells age faster and wrinkle more.

BACK TO THE FUTURE!

Postage stamps will cost a penny. Drunks won't be allowed to have children. And men and women the world over will run around naked!

Those are just a few of the mind-twisting predictions that people living in mild mode when the American Press Association asked what the world would be like 100 years later, in 1993.

The speculations were elicited on the occasion of the World's Columbian Exposition, held in Chicago in 1893. And while many were ridiculous, others fall amazingly close to home. Here's a sample:

- People will routinely live to be 150 years old!
- Women will gain enormous social and political power — and literally rule the world!
- The United States will expand to include Mexico and Canada!
- Scientists will control the weather!
- Cancer — and the common cold — will be cured!
- Drugs and medicines of all kinds will be obsolete as people learn to cure diseases with ordinary plants and the power of their minds!
- Proper nutrition will eliminate the desire for booze and "stimulants" of all kinds!
- The simplification of laws and government will put lawyers out of business!
- Prisons will have vanished from sight, libraries and halls rooms!
- Racial prejudice and brutal crime will disappear!
- A woman will be elected President of the United States!
- Well-to-do people will be able to see plays and concerts in the privacy of their homes by means of a "telephone" a device that we know as video now!
- Automobiles will be hitched pets to tame children!
- Work days will shrink dramatically — with three hours on the job being considered a long day!
- Mankind will invent and communicate with extraterrestrials — and people from Earth will vacation on the moon!
- People will travel in pneumatic tubings, which will be as common as buses and buggies!
- Postage stamps will cost a penny!

DEVIL'S TRIANGLE

Lost couple's boat towed to shore — by a

A shipwrecked couple was snatched from certain death in the Devil's Triangle when their dinghy was towed to shore — by a phantom sailboat that had vanished in those same mysterious waters more than 80 years before!

By SUE DONOVAN

From the description Mark and Jan Brewster gave a marine historian positively identified the ghostly boat and the white haired old salt who manned her tiller.

"The boat that towed the couple to safety was the 37 foot yawl Spray and its skipper was Joshua Slocum.

Clifford, a Nova Scotia born man of the sea, had become the first man to sail around the world single handed." Clifford explained. "On May 14, 1895, he set sail from Martha's Vineyard bound for South America. The voyage took him into the Devil's Triangle where he and Spray vanished without a trace.

The odyssey that would take the Brewsters to their encounter with the unknown began in 1985 when the retired, 59 year old Australian chemist and his 36-year-old wife sailed from their home port in Sydney for a world cruise aboard their ghost ship!

48-foot ketch Qin-Ming. "Jan and I had always dreamed of sailing around the world together on our own boat," Mark explained. "Qin-Ming was built to fulfill that dream. But it didn't work out that way."

The Brewsters spent several months cruising the South Pacific, slowly working their way to Hawaii and from there to the U.S. coast. They cruised down the Baja coast, locked through the Panama Canal to the Atlantic and began hopping their way through the islands of the Caribbean Sea.

But off the coast of Guatemala, the boat hit something that tore the rudder out of the hull. The couple just had time to grab their emergency supply pack and launch their inflatable dinghy before Qin-Ming went down . . . and with it their dream.

The castaways drifted in the tiny, 8-foot dinghy for almost three weeks with only a splintered piece of salvaged sail to shield them from the blistering tropical sun.

They had rationed their meager food supply but by the end of the second week, the last morsel was gone. Three days later, they shared the last drop of water.

Clifford

"Having no water was the worst nightmare," Mark said. "After a few days, we were too weak to do anything but huddle together under that piece of sail.

"Then one night, I felt a breeze on my face . . . and I could feel the dinghy moving through the water.

"I opened my eyes and saw a sight that made me think I had lost my mind. The dinghy was being towed behind a sailboat and we were moving through the water like a bat out of hell.

"I roused Jan and when she saw what was happening she just sat there, staring like she was seeing a ghost. And we know now that we were. But at that moment, I really didn't care. We were moving.

"The boat shimmered in a greenish glow and I could clearly see the boat's name on the stern. It was Spray. There's no mistake about that. And I could see the shape of a man at the tiller.

"Every few minutes he would look back at us and I could see he was an old guy . . . maybe in his 70s or older. He had white hair and a white beard and was wearing rugged clothes. It was all so clear. Jan saw it all, too.

"We had no idea which way we were going, but before dawn, I could see the lights on the horizon. After a while, I noticed we weren't moving anymore. Then I noticed that the old guy and the boat were gone. We were drifting again.

"But we had been rescued with the chugging lines and the lights I had seen in the dark were the lights of a freighter. We were right out there where we could be seen and, thank God, we were. We were taken aboard the freighter and four days later docked in Venezuela.

"Jan and I don't care what other people think, but we know someone not of this world saved our lives."

Boat dumps 5,000 barrels of wine into Sea of Japan

Fish lovers got drunk as skunks when a boat containing 5,000 barrels of wine struck a coral reef, spilling the stuff into the Sea of Japan.

Fishermen brought in nets full of small fish which had pickled from large dose of wine.

Later that day, restaurants and fish stores all over Japan served the boozy delicacy, causing their customers to become drunk.

One Japanese diner told the Tokyo Times: "It was the tastiest meal I ever had."

BEFORE GRANNY,

Feisty grandma Annette Kader wanted to liven up her love life with hubby Bernard — so she bought herself a new bustline to drive him wild with passion!

The 78-year-old woman got breast implants and went from a size 36A bra to a 44DD. Bernard admits he's bowled over by his wife's new boobs and he says he couldn't be more delighted.

"They're gorgeous," said the happy hubby from Eugene, Ore.

"My wife is the sexiest woman I know.

"It was a total surprise to me when she had the operation.

"She said she was seeing doctors for a 'female problem.' When I visited her in the hospital and she showed me the results of her operation I was absolutely speechless with joy."

Annette, a grandmother of 13, married Bernard, a retired postman, two years ago after years of lonely widowhood.

Special report

She admits that she was just a lovely dame in those days, but it didn't matter at first and the couple's sex life was great for the first few months.

But after a while their love life had settled into humdrum routine and An-

GRANNY at 13 Annette Kader was flat as a pancake before her breast surgery.

HOW TO TRAIN YOUR CAT WITHOUT GOING BONKERS!

Even dyed-in-the-wool cat lovers will tell you that adoring your cat is easy but trying to train her can drive you bonkers!

Author Scott Hart, however, says it doesn't have to be all that hard if you follow some simple suggestions.

He's written a pamphlet on the subject and offers these tips:

- End each lesson on a good note — after your cat does something good, not when you're both exasperated.
- Don't spend more than 10 or 15 minutes a day in your training sessions.
- Be patient.
- Keep the surroundings free of distractions.
- Give rewards immediately. If you wait too long, your kitty will forget why you're giving her the goodies.
- Give special praise when your cat does something right.

78, GETS BOOB IMPLANTS!

PASSIONATE sixtyish Annette and hubby Bernard are delighted with her double-D's.

She goes from 36A to 44DD — and happy hubby says she's hot to trot!

nette began to fear she was losing Bernard's interest.

"I didn't want to go through the rest of my life with a bored and unhappy husband," says Annette, a retired telephone operator.

"I figured I had to liven things up a bit by giving him a little extra in bed.

"Bernard loves a voluptuous woman and frankly, I was as flat as a pancake.

"I figured I could perk him up a little if I had big breasts.

"I did this to save my marriage — and it definitely worked."

Since Annette's bust surgery in May the curvy cutie says romance is back in her marriage and Bernard is more attentive than ever.

"It's like being on a continual honeymoon with my husband," she says.

"He can't take his eyes off my cleavage," the silver-haired sex siren says.

"He wants to take me out all the time and show me off in public.

"He loves it when the other guys ask me to dance and ogle my sexy new figure.

"My breast operation has been such a success that I wish I'd done it years ago.

"I could have had a much more interesting life if I'd had the figure I have today."

VOLUPTUOUS Annette hopes her extra cleavage will make her dull sex life more memorable.
